ALYEA FAMILY NOTES

William Heidgerd, 1957

I. THE FIRST ALYEA IN AMERICA

PIERRE D'AILLE, born at Châtelleraut, France, 1649; Professor of Theology, School of Saumur, 1679-1682; French Reformed Church, New York City, 1683-1696; supplied New Paltz, Staten Island, and other French churches and itinerated among them constantly, 1692-1696; Boston, School Street French Reformed Church 1696-1715; died May 20, 1715.

(from Collections of Huguenot Society of America):

"The arrival of Rev. Pierre Daillé, who has been not inappropriately called the Apostle of the Huguenots in America, in 1682 remedied the unfortunate state of affairs of the French Protestant Church in New Netherland.

"Pierre Daillé, a kinsman of the great Jean Daillé, was born in France, probably at Châtelleraut, in 1649. At the early age of about thirty, he became professor in the Academy of Saumur, the foremost of 4 Protestant Schools of Theology in France. There his zeal and learning soon attracted the attention of the Catholic Party and he was banished the kingdom.

"Accompanied by his wife, he seems to have taken refuge in Holland, where it has hitherto been supposed a call from the consistory of the Dutch Church of New York met him. It has recently been shown, however, that from Holland he proceeded to England, where he was episcopally ordained, and that it was under the auspices of the Lord Bishop of London that he came to America.

"On his arrival here, he applied himself at once, and with characteristic energy, to the interesting but difficult and laborious task of preaching the gospel to his brethren scattered through the province of New York.

"He began his work by reorganizing the French Church in New York, which continued to prosper under his diligent care until 1692. A number of Huguenot families which had become members of the Dutch Church, at once joined the French. Even Gov. Andros 'understanding and speaking both Low Dutch and French' became an attendant at the French services, which were held like the English services in the Dutch church within the fort. Mr. D'Aillé next revived the church on Staten Island, from the members of which we have a petition dated January 15, 1683, asking not to be obliged to contribute to the support of the English minister.

"Then this indefatigable missionary turned his attention to the more distant Huguenot Settlements. In January, 1683, he visited New Paltz and established a church in which the French language was used until 1733. A few years later he founded a church at Kinkachemeck, near Hackensack, N.J.; and there was probably not a single Huguenot establishment within reach which he did not repeatedly visit and encourage with the word of God. He was, in the language of Selyns, whose colleague he became on his arrival in New York, 'full of fire, godliness, and learning' and 'maintains the cause of Jesus Christ with untiring zeal.'

"In 1696 Mr. Daillé resigned his position here to accept a call from the French church of Boston. He was no doubt largely influenced in his determination by his changed circumstances (due to the Leisler affair). As early as 1686 two thirds of the Congregation of Staten Island seceded from the church of New York. The secession was provoked by Laurant Vandenbosch, a Frenchman, who had been until recently pastor of the Boston church. Writing to Increase Mather, Mr. Daillé, speaking of Vandebosch says: 'But, to pass over to other matters, he, contrary to pledges given, and to what is honorable and just, snatched away to himself two parts (2/3) of our church (which reside in the country); so that our church, which before the arrival of the above mentioned Vandebosch was intimately joined together, and so to speak, one heart and one soul, now went off into (distinct) parts.'

"Mr. Daillé's last recorded semi-annual visit to New Paltz was in 1682, and with the death of David Demarest in 1693, the projected colony of Kinkachemeck failed, and with it the church which Daillé had established there.

"Although he was succeeded in New Paltz and on Staten Island by the Rev. David deBonrepos, it is possible that the Huguenots residing the country then shared to some extent the feelings of the Dutch of whom Selyns writes under date of October 12, 1692: 'Bergen, Hackensack, Staten Island, and Harlem have fallen off, under the idea they can live without ministers and sacraments.' (Anth. of New Netherland - Henry C. Murphy p. 119)

"But, whatever the precise nature of these difficulties may have been, Mr. Daillé's position at New York had evidently become unsatisfactory; and he accepted the call from Boston, where his character and talents had freer scope and where the little French church had recently received some accessions from New Oxford. And there, honored and respected by all, the eminent Huguenot pastor continued to labor until the end. After a lingering disease of some thirteen weeks, he died there without issue, on May 20, 1715 in the 67th year of his age.

"By his will he left, among other bequests, his books for the use of the church, one hundred pounds for the support of the ministers of the church, Ten pounds for the erection of a church edifice and five pounds to the French schoolmaster."

"January 22, 1683, Mr. Pierre Daille, minister of the Word of God, arrived at New Paltz (nouveau palatinat), and preached twice on the following Sunday, and proposed to the heads of the families that they should choose by a majority of votes, by the fathers of families, one elder and one deacon, which they did, and chose Louis DuBois for elder and Hugh Freer for deacon, to assist the minister in guiding the members of the church that meets in New Paltz; who were subsequently confirmed in the said charge of elder and deacon. This minute has been made to put in order the matters which pertain to the said church." Above from the first record of the Reformed Church at New Paltz which is written in French in a small book about 6 x 8 inches which is still in the possession of the church. The papers is yellow with age, but the writing is perfectly legible. A translation was made by William E. DuBois of Philadelphia in 1846.

"October 14, 1683, Baptised two children of Pierre Doyau, one named Peter and the other Mary. Abraham Rutan, godfather, and Mary Petilon, godmother to the first. Abraham DuBois, godfather, and Margaret Doyau, godmother to the second.

"October 21, 1683. Baptised a child of Simon LeFevre and Elizabeth Doyau, named Isaac. Isaac DuBois, godfather, and Maria Hasbrouck, godmother.

Mr. D'Allié baptised 27 others during his ministry at New Paltz. The last of his baptisms on record is that of a son of Moses Quentin and Lisbette D'Oyau, his wife. Godfather, Perre Guimar, godmother, Rachel Hasbroucq.

"June 7, 1690. First record of a marriage by Mr. D'Allié. Hugue Frere, son of Hugue Frere, his father, and Marie Haye, his mother, to Marie LeRoy.

In the possession of the Huguenot Historical Society there is a paper bearing the signature of Rev. Mr. Pierre D'Allié dated 1691.

December 10, 1751. In a letter from the deacons and elders of the church at New Paltz to the Classis of Amsterdam, he is referred to as the Rev. De Pierre D'Alje.

(from Ecclesiastical Records of the State of New York):

Rev. Peter Aille was one of the earliest ministers with the French protestants of the city of New York. He incurred Leisler's displeasure in 1690, and subsequently had some difference with his congregation (New York Documentary History, ii.432, iii.678, 1167) which caused him to remove to Boston, where he is mentioned in 1696 as having charge of a society of French refugees.

May 1, 1691. Journal of Assembly, New York, page 9: Information was given that Daille, the French minister, had received a petition signed by several of the inhabitants of Harlem and Westchester. Daille was summoned to appear before the House and give information. He appeared and was asked through an interpreter whether he had such a paper. He refused to give any information. He was committed for contempt until he should answer. In the afternoon he said that he had received such a paper but his wife had burned it, etc. He was discharged after paying certain fines."

(from History of Harlem - Riker, 1881):

"Though disapproving of Leisler's course, Mr. Daille's sympathies were so stirred by his impending fate (hanging) that he circulated for signatures at Harlem and elsewhere, a petition for his pardon, but for this humane act he was called to account by the General Assembly.

"Mr. Daille in 1696 accepted a call to Boston, returning the next year to marry a second wife, and occasionally thereafter coming to New York as in 1703, when he sold a house and lot on Broadway, and again three years before his death, which was probably his last visit to his old flock."

(from History of Huguenot Emigration to America - C.W. Baird, II, 226):

"In 1696 Pierre Daillé came to Massachusetts from New York where he had settled as Minister of the French congregation in that city ever since his arrival in America. His pastorate in Boston continued until his death nineteen years later. This period was the meridian of the Church's prosperity. Daillé's relations with the ministry of Boston were already friendly, and when he came to reside permanently among them, he was received with the utmost consideration. Something of this deference may have been due to the distinguished name he bore, that of the famous minister of Charenton, Jean Daillé, who was one of the most erudite scholars and theologians of his age. How Pierre stood related to his great namesake we do not know. It is thought that he may have belonged to a branch of the same family with Jean, a family seated at Chatellerault in the Province of Patou. But our Huguenot pastor brought other credentials. Before coming to America he had been professor in the great Protestant Academy of Saumur the most celebrated of the four Protestant Colleges of France. Saumur was for 80 years 'a torch that illuminated all Europe'. Its course of instruction was very complete. There were two professors of theology, a professor of Hebrew, and one of Greek, and a principal having the oversight of the whole course of instruction. It is not known which one of these chairs Daillé filled. But Saumur was noted for the care taken to admit only recognized capacity to its corps of instructors; and the fact that Daillé was connected with that academy attests his reputation for learning. Like other scholars of his day, he wrote Latin fluently. His letters, several of which have been preserved, reveal the courtliness, the moderation, and the keen intelligence of a Huguenot of the finest type. But Daillé's best qualification was his earnest and unaffected piety. The congregations to whom he ministered, made up of men and women who had known the heat of persecution, listened to him as to one who had walked through the same fires. In Boston, the English sometimes came to hear this Huguenot preacher. Highly as they respected him, the stricter class of Puritans could not be altogether pleased with a liturgical worship and with the observance of Christmas and Easter. The admirable man, Samuel Sewall, was constrained to enter a gentle protest, as his diary (Vol.1, p.491) tells us, against one of these practices. 'This day I spake with Mr. Newman about his partaking with the French Church on the 25th of December on account of its being Christmas day, as they abusively call it.' But these differences scarcely qualified the cordial regard felt for the French exiles by their Puritan neighbors. 'Tis my hope,' said Cotton Mather, 'that the English churches will not fail in respect to any that have endured hard things for their faithfulness to the Son of God.' (Prefatory Recommendation to M. Carre's sermon, 'The Charitable Samaritan'.)

At the funeral of Cotton Mather's wife, November 11, 1713, Mr. Daillé was chosen to be one of the 'bearers'. (Diary of Samuel Sewall, Vol 2, p.407)

October 15, 1706. The Reverend Christopher Bridge, lately assistant minister of Kings' Chapel, commended the French minister to the Society's regard as 'a man of great learning and sobriety, and very industrious in his ministerial functions. He was episcopally ordained and many years past sent into these parts by the Lord Bishop of London.' (Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts.)

(from Boston News Letter, May 23, 1715):

"On Friday morning last, the 20th Currant, Dyed here the Reverend Mr. Peter Daille, Pastor of the French Congregation, Aged about 66 years - He was a Person of Great Piety, Charity, Affable and Courteous Behaviour and of Exemplary Life and Conversation, much lamented especially by his Flock, and was decently Interr'd on the Lords Day Evening the 22nd instant."

However in the contemporary note of Wm. Cooper, Daille was about 70 when he died.

(from Probate Office, Suffolk Co., Boston, No. 3663): The will of Peter Daillé of Boston, Clerk:

Among the directions regarding his funeral, there is a 'restriction, that there be no wine', and a request that 'all ministers of the Gospels within the sd town of Boston' (and Mr. Walters interlined) 'shall have scarffs and Gloves as well as my Bearers'.

The following bequests were made:

"I give all my French and Latin books to the French church in Boston (whereof I have been a Teacher) as a Library to be kept for the use and benefit of the Ministers of the sd Church for the time being forever. I also give the sum of £100...to be let out at interest on good security by the Elders of sd Church for the time being forever, and the yearly Interest thereof shall be for the help and support of the Minister of sd church for the time being forever. And I likewise will the sum of £10 to be put into the hands of sd Elders to be improved for the use of sd Church till they shall erect a meeting house for the worship of God at which time sd £10 shall be paid toward the charge thereof. (I give £5 to old Mr. John Rawlins, French schoolmaster).

"ITEM I give and bequeath to my loving wife, Martha Daillé the sum of £350 in Province bills or silver equivalent thereto and my Negro man servant named Kuffy and also my plate, cloaths, household goods, and furniture, to hold the same, to her sd Martha daillé, her heirs, executors, adminrs and assigns forever.

"ITEM I give, devise and bequeath unto my loving brother Paul Daille (Vaugilade in Amsfort) in Holland and to his heirs and assigns forever all the residue of my Estate both real and personal wheresoever the same is lying or may be found.

"ULTO I do hereby nominate and appoint me (good friend Mr. James Baudoin) the sole Executor of this my last Will and Testament. In Witness whereof I have hereunto put my hand and seal the day and year first within written.

DAILLE (Seal)

The witnesses were Benjamin Wadsworth, Phebe Manley, and Martha Willis. Offered for probate 5-31-1715.

Rev. Peter Daille was the minister of the French Huguenot Church on Market-field St. or Petticoat lane. The house in which he lived was on the South Side of Oyster Pasty lane about halfway between Broadway & Greenwich St.

The name of the minister in the following anecdote from the early history of the New Paltz church is not given. We wonder if it might be the learned Daille:

"It is related that sometimes a minister would visit New Paltz during the summer. There was one clergyman, eccentric in dress and manners, who occasionally made such a journey, and for the purpose of meditation, he would cross the Wallkill in a canoe, to some large elms growing upon a bank opposite the church. On one occasion the stream was low, and whilst pushing the canoe with a pole, it broke, when the Domine, losing his balance, pitched overboard. He succeeded, however, in reaching the shore, and proceeded to the nearest house, for the purpose of drying his clothes. This partly accomplished, he entered the pulpit, when he informed his congregation that he had intended to have given them a sermon on baptism, but eying his garments, he said circumstances prevented, as he could now sympathize with Peter and take the text, 'Lord, save, or I perish.'"

Daille married three times. Esther Latonice, married probable in France. She died December 14, 1696.

Marriage license granted to Peter Daille, minister, and Seytie Duyckinck August 13, 1697 (N.J. Colonial Documents). Will of Robert Sinclair dated August 4, 1704, pr. 10-8-1704, mentions wife's sister Sytie, wife of Peter Daille, and wife's brother Garret Duyckinck. Her name is given elsewhere as Seike and Psyche. She died 8-31-1713. (Gen. Dict. of N.E.) He left a widow named Martha.

His grave is in the Granary Burying Ground, Boston.

FIRST GENERATION

We have no documentary evidence to prove the connection between JAN ALIEE of Hackensack and the Rev. Pierre D'Aillé. The fact that the latter's will mentions no children need not necessarily be interpreted as saying he had no issue, inasmuch as by that time Jan Aliee, a prosperous farmer of the Hackensack area was probably also deceased, and had left his children well provided for. Unfortunately, no records of the French Church at Hackensack, which might throw light on the question, exist and the fact that the name is spelled in such a variety of ways (Daille, D'Aillé, D'Alje, Alliee, Alie, Alyea, etc.) further complicates matters.

from Tercentenary Studies of the Reformed Church in America):

The leader of the French colony at Hackensack, David desMarest, leaving France with his family had lived in the Netherlands for 12 years and had then come to this country in 1663. He spent two years on Staten Island, was connected with the Huguenot Church there, then spent 12 years in Harlem, connected with the Dutch church there, but worshipping also with a 'French congregation' when it was able to have French services. In 1677 he secured from the Indians and Sir George Carteret the French Patent on the Hackensack, the idea being that the French colonists in some number should occupy it.

"In 1678 he came accompanied by seven adults of his own name; a few other French families were with him, LaRou, deViaux, DuRie. The nearest church for them was the Bergen Dutch Church, nearly 15 miles away; with that they connected themselves and to it they drove for worship when they had services. But in 1682, after many items of record in the registry of that church, the family name no longer appears at all, and opposite the name of the head of the family appears the word 'removed'. It was then, no doubt, that the Huguenot Church was built, the congregation organized, that French services on the Hackensack began - under the occasional care of Rev. Pierre Daillie of New York.

"The Hackensack Church was organized in 1686, but from 1686 to 1696 only one Huguenot name appears on its records. A marriage record at Bergen on February 28, 1692/3, notes from the contracting parties brought testimonials from the French Church of Kinkachemak in the County of Bergen. In 1696 Mr. Daille removed to Boston. That plainly was the ending of the little church. In 1696, April 5 and July 10, the Hackensack church records the names of twelve people, six of them of the desMarest family, as received from the 'French congregation'. Thus ended the church after fourteen years of life. Likewise gradually the Dutch stock prevailed over the French in the Hackensack Valley. But widely in the communities and the churches linger Huguenot names and characteristics.

Seven of the children were baptised at Schraalenburgh and three at Paramus. The 1790 Orange County Census shows the names of the following Alyeas as family heads in Warwick: John, Peter, John Jr., Samuel, Henry, and Peter Jr. While not yet proven, it seems likely that most of the children of Abraham were living there, the younger children and possibly a widowed mother living with Samuel. Henry is the only one listed in the 1800 census.

David Alyea's Will was proved Oct. 22, 1855, Passaic County, Book B, pp.66-68; "In the name of God, Amen, I David Alyea of the Township of Acquackanonck in the County of Passaic and the State of New Jersey, being in my own apprehension of sound mind...do make, publish this my last Will and Testament in manner and form following:

It is my Will that my just debts and funeral expenses be paid by my executors hereinafter named and appointed, out of my estate, as soon as conveniently may be after my decease.

I give unto my son Peter all my real and personal estate on the following conditions: viz: (1) That he pay to my son Richard eight hundred dollars one year after my decease and in case of his death then to his heirs. (2) That he pay to my daughter Eliza's heirs Two hundred dollars to be equally divided between them one year after my decease. (3) That he pay to my daughter Ann's heirs one hundred and fifty dollars to be due one year after my decease, but to remain in my son Peter's hands until she arrives to the age of twenty-one years, he allowing her interest for the same. (4) That he pay to my daughter Sarah Two hundred dollars one year after my decease and in case of her death, then to her heirs.

And I appoint my son Peter sole executor of this my last Will and Testament, hereby revoking all former Wills by me made.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and seal this thirteenth day of July, in the year of our Lord 1854.

(s) DAVID ALYEA

COLE'S HISTORY OF ROCKLAND COUNTY:

On the 17th of July 1775, the most important meeting ever held in this locality (Orangetown) took place probably at the Yost Mabie House. At this meeting every man was called on to declare his allegiance to the cause of liberty, or be reckoned among the enemies of the country. The meeting was called to consider the adoption of a resolution of support to the Continental Congress. The resolution was transmitted to all the counties in the Province of New York. Among the signers in Orangetown were David and Albert Alyea. Dated at Orangetown July 17, 1775.

The Alyea family of New Jersey has been almost completely neglected by genealogists. Perhaps it is the multitudinous spellings, a common enough failing in early records, which offered discouragement. This name becomes more than usually difficult to trace through French, Dutch, and English records. The French spelled it D'Aillé. Here it became Daille, Dallie, D'Alji, d'Alie, Aliee, Allie, Alje, Elyea etc. etc.

Investigations of public records of Bergen and Passaic Counties in New Jersey have led us this short distance. Perhaps it will be a start for someone else.
